

Daniel Coker, of Foristell, Missouri, is a proud member of Saint Charles County Toastmasters. After graduating from Lindenwood University with Honors and a 4.0 GPA in 2015, he put his Computer Science degree to good use by writing and maintaining power outage management software for National Information Solutions Cooperative. Shortly after graduating, he joined Toastmasters, and has steadily built his Leadership (and Public Speaking) skills in the three years since. He served as Sergeant at Arms for one year and co-served as VP-PR for the next. He has received his ALB and ACS, and is hoping to manage to get DTM this year. He is known for his long list of jokes. Most of them are even funny!

“Toastmasters has improved my public speaking, social interaction, and leadership skills immensely. It’s also done more for my time management skills than anything else in the past decade, largely through the concept of ‘1% time’ (put 1% of your time, or 14 minutes per day, into something you've always wanted to accomplish).”

Daniel's favorite quotes include “There ain’t a horse can't be rode; there ain’t a cowboy can’t be throwed,” from Dr. Lew Sterrett, and “If you can't explain it to a six year old, you don't understand it yourself,” from Albert Einstein.

As Area Director, Daniel wants to keep the Area running smoothly and leave it even better than he found it by learning from every club and taking that advice to every other club.
