

Stacey Costin has been a member of Toastmasters since October 2018 as a founding member of the Techmasters club at Mastercard. Her “day job” at Mastercard is being part of the Implementations team to onboard new clients. She switched from 30 years in healthcare to the financial technology field and with that change in careers realized a personal change needed to happen as well so when the chance came about to be part of a newly formed club, she jumped in with both feet.

In addition to serving her club as first the Vice President of Education and most recently as President, Stacey has enjoyed learning about and being part of the Toastmaster’s Youth Leadership Program and likes how nicely it ties in with her volunteer work through Junior Achievement.

Volunteer activities outside of work other than Junior Achievement include the St Louis Food Bank and supporting animal rescue groups. She and her husband share their home with a variety of four-legged creatures who pretty much run things the show.
