

Paul Jimenez Bio

He was born less than a month after the moon landing in California but has lived in Missouri most of his life. He was worked in computers and customer services only a few years ago venturing into the leadership.

His Toastmasters journey is intimately tied to his profession as project manager. Years ago when he was exploring career options he met a Toastmaster named "Howard Price." Howard invited him to a meeting and at that meeting he told a story out of the story telling manual. At the end of that speech Paul knew that whatever it was that Howard had he to had to have it. He became a Toastmaster. At the same time Paul was changing careers. He was becoming a project manager. Today if you ask him he will happily tell you that nearly everything he knows about being a project manager he learned in Toastmasters.

Paul is looking forward to the next step in his Toastmaster's journey, beyond himself, beyond the job, joining the leadership moving Toastmasters forward.
